Disappointing. The best wines (which were bronze) have some freshness and are balanced. Too many wines were too oily or lacked freshness.

A surprising number of winemaking issues, with oxidation, poor colour and VA prominent. Quite a few dilute wines but the best examples showed that Sauvignon Blanc can have lovely texture and real complexity.

Quite a strong class, although the highlights were not very numerous. Free sulphur dioxide was obscuring many wines at this early stage of their lives. Very few faulty wines. A good range of styles came up, from very restrained delicate fruit styles to more powerful barrel influenced wines.

Many wines were either too forward or too sweet. Some reduction problems. Viognier at least a variety with personality. The silver medal wine is the most appealing Chenin Blanc we have seen in some time.

Panel A: Very strong class of Cabernets reflecting two successful vintages. A great pleasure to judge these wines. Many highlights for us to debate and resulting in a high gold medal rate. Top wines epitomise the class of the 07 vintage and the Margaret River region.

Panel B: Top wines reflect the strength of 07. Wonderful depth and richness of fruit with persistent, yet fine tannins. The best wines here will age well.

A strong class as expected of 2007 & 2008. Quite a few overly simple wines, perhaps attributable to vine age but there was good diversity of styles to be seen, from the massively proportioned to the fine and elegant. The 4 golds highlight this perfectly.

Panel A: A solid class. Tannin management and oak useage the areas where most improvement can be made. Vibrancy, ripe tannins and true medium bodied styles where sought and found.

Panel B: Too many oily wines - the winemaker rather than the vineyard is showing. It is still hard to define what is Margaret River regional style. The top wines were quite diverse styles, but there is a suspicion that better and more drinkable wines will be made if the winemaker steps back a little. A good class on the whole.

A very strong class with many highlights. A diversity of styles won high medals, from the delicate and refined to the rich and complex. One very interesting 'wild child', number 38 also was recognised. Top two wines were difficult to separate, both pristine, vibrant & seamless. The 2007 finally triumphing because of it's youthfulness and finesse. Quite a lot of wines were tiring already or showing a lack of freshness, especially worrying for 2008.
